Not illustrated. 1903 Excerpt: . . . present institute law we believe to be defective in thdt it does not make provision for a sufficient fund to pay the expense of a thoroughly good institute. And the fund that is secured under its operation comes in a large measure from that class of teachers least able to pay. Tho teacher who holds a life diploma contributing but one dollar for all the institutes hold in his county during the time of his registration in that county, while the teachers holding county certificates must pay every one, two, or three years, as the case may be. Thn3 the funds are generally so limited that the superintendent is unable to secure suitable instructors; or should he sueceeu in this respect, the time is so limited that very small benefii is obtained. --F. E. Young, city superintendent. Malheur County--Ee-reading your question, submitted in last month, regarding our institute law, reminds me to say: (I) That I did not apprehend fully the gist of the question; (J) that I did not know that the Portland teachers had made a roar against the law. There certainly is none in this county against the law, it being, by odds, the best law the state has ever had on the subject. The law is not perfect. No laws are, for that matter; and it is a serious question, in my own mind, whether the changes suggested would improve the law. In justice to the teachers of this county, I should...
