A & P W Consultants Ltd. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Not a Single Excuse: Origins and Memoirs of a Small Town Politician, Alan Ward, The first part of this book is essentially a family history which attempts to indicate conditions at the time of, and background to, events surrounding it. It may be of interest, therefore both to those interested in ancestry research and those interested in social history, particularly of the 19th and early 20th Century. Some of the characters were military people and their adventures in many ways epitomise the Britain of the 19th Century. We follow William Ward for example from his birth place in Colchester through to the plains of India, the Crimean Peninsula and finally via Ireland to his death in Canada as a member of the 16th Regiment of Foot. We also meet his son, William James; who finds himself in a school for orphans at the age of seven and becomes an Army schoolmaster, ending his days as a Warrant Officer Class One with the 2nd Battalion of the Coldstream Guards at Wellington Barracks in London. During his service he had two spells in the Indian sub-continent with his wife Ellen Jane, who gave birth to nine children, two of which were born on the Northwest frontier on the borders of Afghanistan. The second part of the book is a personal memoir of the author reflecting on his life from the time of the outbreak of the Second World War to the Millennium and the advent of New Labour. This gives us a feeling for a school boy living through the momentous events of the war and traumatic decade that followed it. It gives us some personal insights into education in the post war decades from the perspective of a schoolmaster...
